Charles E. Babin, chairman of the spending, Before Chairman Barker's announcement that it would be resumed there was the familiar atmosphere of strained expectancy which has accompanied all the hearings and litigations connected with the spending for the past ten years. Hereafter this has been lacking at the present hearings, but to-day it seemed that the time of the past years had returned in the guise of the many underlying features of the gas proposition of to-day, seemed to be the same old story.

It seemed to feel that following Councilman Barker's argument and Councilman Snow's reply that the time would never be again the developments of more vital interest to the people of the city.

JURY IS OUT

Extraordinary Scenes as Trial of "Florodora" Girl Nears End—Telling Effect of Prosecutor Rand's Closing Causes Doubt of Result—Nan Confident of Acquittal.

By Boston American Leased Wire

NEW YORK, Dec. 22.—The jury in the Nan Patterson case went out at 12:25 p. m.

"I shall be free within an hour."

This was Nan Patterson's confident declaration when Judge Vernon M. Davis drew near to the close of his charge to the jury at noon to-day. The actress, charged with the murder of "Caesar" Young, the noted turfman, had been sustained throughout the forenoon by excitement and the eager anticipation of liberty, and her face was flushed and her eyes sparkled as the fateful ending of the celebrated case drew near.

Judge Davis's charge was absolutely impartial. He left the jury to judge the facts without recommendation, contenting himself with expounding the law and eliminating from consideration justifiable or excusable homicide.

THOUSANDS STORMED DOORS.

The court room was packed and thousands stormed the doors, unable to get past the line of policemen that stood on guard. Sir Charles Wyndham, the noted English actor, and many distinguished lawyers were among the interested spectators. The galleries of the Criminal Courts building and the halls were crowded, and the throng

Nan Patterson's confidence that she would be acquitted appeared to be shared by all who followed the case. It was the prevailing impression that the jury would speedily return a verdict of not guilty, although a few looked for a disagreement.

Nan will say nothing of her future. All she will discuss is the awful ordeal she passed through during Prosecutor Rand's final address to the jury.

Her breakfast finished to-day, she mumbled picking up the toilet articles and light objects which she had left out of her packing. Her earth, brush, towels and naps were gone.

He then went into a small grip. When she had finished, all that remained unpacked were the garments she wore, her coat, hat and veil and gloves. Her father, wanting to help her, walked about picking the articles up and laying them down again while he talked of their plans for the future.

Her father purchased for her a traveling gown, consisting of a complete dark tulle and suit, so convenient was it of her outfit. He also bought for her a new black hat. A long dark overcoat, white

FIRE CAUSES $600 LOSS

But for prompt action by Patrolman
William H. Livingston the East Boston Street Station four persons would probably have met death in a fire early this morning in the dwelling house at No. 41 Camden street.

The fire was discovered by Lewis E.
Williams, who lives on the top floor. Williams detected the smell of smoke and started to investigate. When he reached the street he found the first floor, which is occupied as a grocery store by Charles H. Moore, alderman. Williams' shouts attracted Patrolman Livingston. Directing Williams to pull in the alarm, Livingston started into the building to arouse the tenants.

Thrilling in the doors on the third floor, Livingston found John Seay, his wife and a young woman, all asleep and sitting in the doorway. He pulled them up to the floor above, where he found Williams' wife, who was unable to make her way down the stairs because of the smoke. He then led her down the fire escape, where he found the other three persons, who were all asleep. The fire gave the fire a good deal of trouble. The fire got dangerously close to the fire escape and the fire escape itself was threatened. The fire was extinguished by the fire department.
